

How the Assassins became DWC159 'Ankh Morpork Handshake'

Front

Back

In late 1992, Leigh Pamment sculpted a couple of figurines that didn't exactly meet Terry's view of the characters. One was DW29, a pair of Drunk Guards, (See page 14) and this one which was never coded and which disappeared into the bowels of the factory.

Leigh was sculpting Assassins but got a bit carried away with bombs, grenades, guns and a Mills bomb.

As Terry said, gunpowder hadn't been invented on the Disc at that time and the weapons were inappropriate.

It is beautifully sculpted piece of work and a shame to waste so, in 2004 we adjusted it slightly and called it the Ankh-Morpork Handshake - Collectors piece 2004.